The 2020 Range Rover Sport HSE Dynamic masterfully blends Land Rover's legendary off-road pedigree with aggressive styling and high-end performance. In the North American market, this trim is defined by its potent 5.0-liter supercharged V8 engine, unleashing a formidable 518 horsepower and 461 pound-feet of torque. Channeled through a smooth eight-speed automatic transmission and a permanent all-wheel-drive system, this heavy luxury SUV rockets from zero to 60 mph in just about five seconds, while maintaining a robust towing capacity of over 7,700 pounds.

What sets the HSE Dynamic apart from the standard HSE is its athletic styling and sharper handling. The exterior is enhanced by a dynamic body kit featuring body-colored side sills, unique front and rear bumpers, and striking gloss black accents on the grille, vents, and mirror caps. Beneath the surface, the vehicle utilizes Land Rovers Terrain Response 2 system, which includes a dedicated Dynamic Mode. When engaged, this system stiffens the electronic air suspension, sharpens throttle response, and tightens body control. Combined with advanced torque vectoring by braking and an electronic active differential, the HSE Dynamic corners with surprising agility.

Inside, the cabin offers an opulent, high-tech sanctuary that retains the brand's classic commanding driving position. The interior is wrapped in premium Windsor leather and features 16-way power-adjustable heated front seats. The dashboard features the Touch Pro Duo infotainment setup, which uses two stacked 10-inch touchscreens to manage navigation, media, climate, and vehicle settings, complemented by standard Apple CarPlay, Android Auto, and a crisp 13-speaker Meridian sound system. A 12.3-inch interactive digital instrument cluster projects vital driver data, while safety features like forward collision warning, lane-keep assist, and blind-spot monitoring provide peace of mind.
